“The Potter’s Hand” (words on screen)

Sent out as Images of God in the World

“The verbal images of hymns provide another example of the way in which images can operate below the level of consciousness as formers of theology...Where the use of images is covert or idling, the images created by hymn texts and tunes become powerful teaching tools.” (Canonical Theism)

“Images express the church’s theology...and help provide a contemplative window through which the believer could see and encounter God.” (Canonical Theism)

“The ultimate point of creating an image was to draw the viewer closer to God.” (Canonical Theism)

“We are to be icons or images of God in the world.” (Anonymous)

Today’s Question

Can Christians hope to evangelize in this culture without making use of images?

What might God do with sanctified uses of images such as websites, movies, music videos, gaming, texting, blogging?

How can I be an image of God in those places?
